To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to inform you about my personal experience working with Christopher Cadoret. I worked with Chris between January 2014 and February 2015 at the Verizon location in Inverness, FL. If I could use one word to describe my experience, it would be “spectacular”. Never in my professional career have I met another individual who could motivate a team like him. Daily, he would show he genuinely cared about his team and would always make himself available to us whenever needed. He has this aura of positivity that creates an uplifting atmosphere. It would inspire those of us who worked around him to always strive for nothing short of excellence. I learned many things in my time working with Chris, what stands out the most; How to be a true leader.

There was no hesitation when it came to “working in the trenches” with us, whether it be assisting with sales pitches, setting up devices so we could quickly get through the queue, helping analyze interactions to discover customer’s unmet needs, or roleplays to help better ourselves as sales specialists. It was truly a pleasure working with Chris, and those of us who had worked with him in Inverness, felt our time together was far too short. To this day, we all know that we can reach out to him and he will answer with his unparalleled words of wisdom. My only regret of working with Chris, is that I will forever analyze my leadership decisions and try to image what he would do to make that decision even better. I highly recommend Christopher Cadoret for any position he applies for, from RBSM to CEO, because of how highly I believe in his unrivaled leadership abilities. If you have any further questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,
